* The Title IX Office received 63 total reports this academic year. Reports are subjective and based on the Complainant's perception that a violation may have occurred. Of the 63 reports received, *14 did not reach merit, i.e., the policy definition of sexual misconduct was not found in the behavior described in the report. This determination is made only after a review of facts available in a report; some behavior reported is deemed "concerning," but would not constitute sexual misconduct by definition. In these cases, support is provided to the Complainant and the case is closed.

¹ Not reflected in the data are 8 reports in regard to employees. Resolutions ranged from supportive measures, expectations conversation, to formal complaint with investigation.
